THE LABOR DECISION AND TRADE UNIONISM

The decision of the United States Supreme Court, holding trade unions, although unincorporated, to be legal organizations and capable, in a sense giving concrete form and expression to a new viewpoint with respect to labor disputes and the law.

For some time it has been recognized that sooner or later the courts or the national legislature would take cognizance of the principle which has been established by the decision handed down by the highest court.

The right of labor to form unions and the right of the members to strike have been legalized, and assured protection of their funds, and unions having been recognized as parties to wage contracts, and accepted as such by governmental action in creating the Railroad Labor Board, conciliation and arbitration boards and otherwise, the trend of public sentiment plainly has been in the direction of insistence that labor organizations assume, or be required to assume, the same legal responsibilities as other bodies.

There has been a growing disposition on part of the public that it is unfair, and not in accord with the American sense of justice, for any group, body or organization, to enjoy immunity from the law. Such a condition tends to provoke quite as much disrespect for and disregard of the law as does the practice of making discriminatory applications of the law.

Thus what at times has been the al-too ready resort to the use of the injunctive process has given place to the complaint that justice is not dispensed with an even hand and that some groups, both incorporated and unincorporated, are virtually allowed freedom of action and while others are restrained.

For that reason labor has at times suffered discrimination and the conviction has been formed that working people cannot get fair treatment in the courts. The recent successful appeal of the garment workers' union in New York to the courts to restrain employers from breaking a wage agreement, shows, however, that labor organizations can have their rights sustained and that they are accorded fair treatment in the courts when appeal thereto is made.

This instance and the decision of the Supreme Court in the Arkansas case ought to serve the purpose of clarifying the situation with respect to both the rights and responsibilities of labor and should be helpful, instead of working a hardship, in promoting the higher purposes and objects of conservative trade unionism.

Steel and the Coal Strike

The American Metal Market.

The more preparation there is for a coal strike, the longer the strike lasts.
The suspensions that used to occur almost every two years, when the wage scale came up for adjustment, had a fashion of lasting until consumers stocks were fairly well exhausted and it became possible for the operators to secure a somewhat better price. In the old days it was a question usually of five to 25 cents a ton. That was before the pinch came in war time, when coal prices moved by dollars a ton.

It is fair to assume that the spirit of the present strike, on the operators' side, is different, and that the operators are anxious to get their costs down in the joint interest of themselves and the public, and that will enable them to compete with the non-union fields, while they feel that the public has been paying too much for coal. Thus the present strike is somewhat different from the majority of its predecessors.

Preparation for the coal strike was not solely on the part of consumers of coal, there having also been some preparation on the part of consumers of things made with coal, including steel. There is no doubt that in February and March some buyers of steel added to their stocks, in fear that the coal strike might restrict the production of coal. The tonnage, this involved may not have been large, but certainly there was some. Then, when on the opening of the regular union strike the non-union workers in some districts, particularly Conneltsville, began to strike also the buyers of steel took still more notice.

How this has worked out to date is readily seen, for the production of steel is known. In the first nine or 10 months of 1920, when there appeared to be unprecedented pressure for steel deliveries, as indicated by the extremely high prices paid for some of the steel, production of steel ingots averaged a rate of 42,000,000 tons a year. In 1921 production was about 19,500,000 tons, and this was approximately the production rate in December.

Production of steel increased very rapidly in the first three months of the year, attaining a rate of about 38,000, 000 tons a year at the end of March.

In the past two weeks the rate has been about 38,000,000 tons, there being a slight gain since the coal strike started, following an unprecedentedly rapid gain in the three months previous.

Production of steel ingots in February and March, the last two months before the strike, was about 4,000,000 tons, while production in April and May has been all of 6,000,000 tons, showing an increase of about 25 per cent. That is the steel industry's answer to the coal strike. It has not been altogether easy to make all this steel, but the thing has been done and the steel industry is going strong. It is receiving large tonnages of coal and it still has a large part of its original stocks.

The steel industry has no occasion to fear a scarcity of coal for its own part. As matters are now aligned, a scarcity of coal that would affect the production of steel would affect the transportation and consumption of steel. If there is any danger, it is not that steel cannot be made, but that industry generally will be affected.

Recognition of Lenin and Trotsky,
as Senator Edge shows, simply means a longer life for one of the worst forms of government ever devised by unprincipled fanatics. Our sympathy for the starving Russian people is deep, for they are the victims of Lenin's Red army, but endorsement by the United States of the iniquitous rule that has brought Russia to ruin is hardly a fit subject for serious discussion.

This government will make no mistake in following the counsel of Senator Edge, whose exposition of the pottiness of the Moscow gang of official scoundrels is supported by a mass of available testimony.

No Recognition for Lenin

Providence Journal.

Senator Borah's proposition for the recognition of Lenin and his Soviet government cannot be considered with patience by the people of America.
Lenin is not the man described by the Senator from Idaho as a "victim of persistent propaganda." He represents everything that is un-American; his use of power in Russia proves that he is utterly unworthy of respect or confidence.

Recognition of Lenin and Trotsky,
as Senator Edge shows, simply means
a longer life for one of the worst forms of government ever devised by unprincipled fanatics. Our sympathy for the starving Russian people is

Federal Automobile Regulation

Saratoga Republican.

The district attorney of the City of New York urges that the adoption of federal automobile registration law would act as a check on the widespread stealing of motor cars which has become a great evil.

Not all agree with that. It has called forth a vigorous protest that it would effect little improvement in their detection and would involve great expense in the maintenance of a government bureau with a small army of employees.

All of which sounds entirely reasonable. Why federal, instead of state, registration would help in a matter of the kind seems hard to understand.
The expense of such a bureau would mount into millions of dollars annually.

What is needed is not better registration but improved methods in running down criminals who make a business of automobile thievery, which is now far too common the past few years.

Prize Essay Contest Open to Boys and Girls, 12 to 18

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 8.—To encourage higher education and patriotic research among school children of the country, The American Legion is sponsoring a national essay contest which has prizes of $1,500 in scholarships. The contest opened June 2, and closes at midnight, August 1.

The service men's organization has asked the cooperation of state, city and county school superintendents, social contributions of essays from every eligible school child. American citizens of Legion posts will assist the educational authorities in the effort.

All girls and boys between the ages of 12 and 18 inclusive are eligible. The subject to be written on is: "How The American Legion Can Best Serve the Nation." The rules provide that each contestant shall submit but one essay of not more than 500 words, and that essays shall be written in an affirmative and constructive way.

County superintendents of schools are asked to name three judges to select the best essay in each county.
The winning essay of the county will be judged by a state committee, selected by the state superintendent of schools or school commissioner, for the purpose of selecting the three state winners. Final selection of first second and third national prize winners will be made from the three best essays of each state, and will be announced several weeks after September 20 by the national judges, whose names will be given out later.

The three national prizes will be known as American Legion scholarship awards, consisting of a first prize of $750, second of $500 and a third of $250, derived from a fund donated by Commander Sanford Mac-Nider.

B. & O. Humbles Lennox Club; Moorman, Chasing Fly Ball, Is Badly Hurt

Star Pitcher of Defeated Team, Playing Left Field, Out of Game.

DUSHAW STRUCK ON HEAD

By James H. Driscoll Sporting Editor.

The Baltimore and Ohio team won over the Lennox Club in a City League game at Fayette Field last evening, 7-4. Opening the game with three runs in the initial frame and adding another in the second, another run was added over in the seventh just to make the game certain.

The break favored the railroaders and in one instance resulted in a deep lead for the Lennoxes. Moorman, pitcher and left fielder, playing in the latter position collided forcibly with Adams, middlefielder, while chasing Clawson's fly ball. Moorman had a tooth knocked loose and four stitches were required to close the wound in his head. Later Dushaw, the Lennox shortstop, was hit in the head by a pitched ball but was able to continue in the game.

Lohr pitched a good game for the railroaders and let his opponents down with six hits, well scattered. Barnhart was also going well but the accident in the opening frame demoralized the Lennox Club. The defeated team won a previous game from the B. & O. by a 6-0 score.

Reineckers Play Cokers On Saturday

The Connellsville Independents meet the W. L. Reineckers, managed by R. R. Boyd of Pittsburgh, in a game at Fayette Field tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. In case of rain fans will be able to determine whether or not the contest is to be played by looking for the big ball at the end of the Paramount billiards sign at Princeton corner. If the "apple" is there it indicates a game and its absence means the contest is off.

The line-up includes some names well known to followers of independent baseball. It is as follows: W. Smith, m; Fisher, rf; Octavia, ss; Fairbairn, 3b; Chisholm, 2b; Mosher, lf; Gerson, 1b; Myers, c; Lantz, 1b; Smith or Johnston, p; Bowes, utility.

The Reineckers have been meeting the best of independent teams in the Pittsburgh district and expect to give the Cokers a snappy contest. A big crowd is assured as fans were disappointed over not seeing a game a week ago and are itching for another treat.

On Saturday, June 17, the locals will meet the Pittsburg All Stars, a team scheduled for last week, but whose appearance was cut off by the rain.

The Lennox Club will miss the services of Moorman, star pitcher, injured when he suffered a severe gash

CELEBRATES THIRTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY

Captain of Chicago White Sox Observes Birthday.

Eddie Collins Was Picked Up by the Philadelphia Athletics in 1906—Still Playing Wonderful Game at the Keystone Sack.

Eddie Collins, second baseman and captain of the Chicago White Sox, one of the greatest stars ever in baseball, celebrated his birthday recently.

"Captain Eddie" was thirty-five years old, or more appropriately, young. In the fifteenth year of his long and honorable major league career, he is going as strong as he was in the first, or the fifth, or the tenth, and it can't be safely predicted how many more years he will be playing his old, steady, wonderful game around the keystone sack, at bat and on the paths.

Edward Trowbridge Collins was born at Millerton, N. J., May 2, 1887, and played his first baseball, aside from that with other small teams, on the town common in 1904, with the Columbia university team at New York. He was a college player in 1905 and 1906, and in 1906 he was picked up by the Philadelphia Athletics as a league club. In that first year he used the name of "Eddie Sullivan" because as a college player he could not participate in organized baseball and retain his amateur standing.

When Collins first went to Philadelphia he was tried out at short and third base, and the ensuing year he played shortstop. In 1908, with the Athletics, he alternated at second base

Memorial Day Observance Cut Coke Production New Low Point Since April 1st

Total 48,470 Tons, a Decrease of 10,680 Tons From Preceding Week.

MORE PLANTS FIRED UP

And More Ovens Added at Others Indicating Recovery This or Next Week; Total of 1,812 Ovens Resumed to Date; Merchants Make First Break.

From The Weekly Courier.
The observance of Memorial Day and the slowing down which preceded it, had the effect of checking the progressive gain in coke production which began during the sixth week of the strike ending May 13. These retarding influences did even more.
They reduced regional output to 48,470 tons, the lowest recorded during the strike to date, thereby neutralizing the gain which had been made up to and including the week ending May 27. While the falling off in production was 10,680 tons, the total was still 13,090 tons, or 37 per cent, greater than during the corresponding week in 1921.

Although the production last week suffered a heavy cut, in proportion to the total of the preceding week, the region is really in better position this week than at any previous period since the strike began to go forward toward even larger production than has been attained after three consecutive weeks of recovery prior to last week's slump. More plants add ovens are in commission this week and the working forces are somewhat larger, except at a few individual plants, than at any time since the week ending May 6 when the high tide of plant and oven closing was reached.

The H. C. Frick Coke Company has added Youngstown to the list of plants restored to partial operation. The Sterling plant of the Consolidated Coke Company, the first merchant operation in Lower Connellsville district, to be fired following shutdown by the strike, now has 50 ovens in running.
These and additions at other Frick plants last week embraces 137 ovens, making a total of 1,312 re-lighted after having been snuffed out by the walkout of employees in the early weeks of April. With these augmentations and the passing of the seasonal holidays there is every probability that the loss in production will be even more than made up this week and the week following. There is a well defined impression in the region that a change of some kind in the strike situation is impending within the next 10 days or two weeks.
The men are tiring of protracted idleness and their families are beginning to feel the discomforts resulting from the absence of pay envelopes. The gradual drift of men to work here or removal to other fields, and the anxiety of others to know when plants will start up, all tend to show that the belief is more generally shared that nothing can be gained by holding out any longer.

The record of production from week to week and the decreases or gains are shown in the following:

Week Ending	Prod.	Decrease	Gain
April 1	149,960
April 8	134,420	15,540
April 15	98,810	35,610
April 22	35,810
April 29	54,230	19,580
May 6	62,500	2,930
May 13	67,430	3,280
May 20	69,150	1,700
May 27	59,150
June 3	48,470
Totals	773,750	158,420	6,930
Net Dec.	77,273	3,846	44,218

Even with only slight recovery from the effects of the strike comparison with the same period a year ago makes it plain that the present curtailment in operation and production continues much less acute, as the subjoined table shows:

Week	Ovens	Prod.	In Prod.	Ovens
Ending
April 1	11,264	139,960	4,712	60,078
April 8	12,841	134,420	1,378	34,786
April 15	9,098	98,810	4,442	47,220
April 22	5,638	64,950	4,768	54,580
April 29	4,363	54,230	4,526	48,710
May 6	4,820	62,500	3,373	50,520
May 13	5,108	67,430	3,788	43,290
May 20	5,365	69,150	3,824	42,680
May 27	5,516	59,150	3,985	37,980
June 3	5,638	48,470	3,985	35,560
Totals	77,750		44,180
Wky. Av.	7,103	77,273	3,846	44,218

The average ovens in blast at this time still exceeds the average of a year ago, the difference being 3,247, while the average weekly production is 35,160 tons greater.

With the firing up of two additional plants last week the active plant list now numbers 34, or 54.6 per cent of those in production on April 1. The status at different periods is here shown:

In Blast	Apr. 1	May 6	May 27	June 3
District	25	20	28	29
Conn.	25	20	28	29
L. Conn.	27	3	4	6
Totals	52	23	32	34

The 127 ovens fired last week swell the number in commission to 5,683, or 47.4 per cent of those in operation when the strike enforced suspension.
To date 1,312 ovens have been brought into use by the gradual process of adding a few here and there from week to week. The oven showing on April 1 and subsequent week ends has been as follows:

In Blast	Apr. 1	May 6	May 27	June 3
Interest	4,050	394	994	1,044
Merchant	7,914	3,825	4,552	4,829
Furnace
Totals	11,964	4,219	5,546	5,873

Production by the respective interests is given below and serves to show that the merchant interests have been and continue to be very much more seriously affected by the strike than the furnace interests which are now represented entirely by the Frick com-

Interest	Apr. 1	May 6	May 27	June 3
Furnace	97,500	33,500	45,360	34,650
Merchant	52,460	13,700	13,750	13,820
Totals	149,960	47,200	59,110	48,470

With the resumption at the Youngstown plant the Frick company now has 22 running out of the 28 producing coke on April 1. This and the oven gain at other plants increases its active oven quota to 4,639, or approximately 70 per cent.
The firing up of Sterling constitutes the first break in the idle list in the Lower Connellsville district and also among the merchant producers. This causes the first change in the table of independent operations since May 6.
The record of the two interests at stated periods is set forth below:

District	Apr. 1	May 6	May 27	June 3
Conn.	4,212	2,877	4,472	4,548
L. Conn.	432		80	90
Totals	4,644	2,877	4,552	4,638

The estimated production during the week ending Saturday, June 3, was 48,470 tons, divided between the two districts as follows: Connellsville, 43,360, a loss of 10,580 tons; Lower Connellsville, 5,120, a gain of 20 tons, or a net loss of 10,600 tons, compared with a gain of 1,700 tons during the preceding week.

By interests the production was:
Furnace, 34,650, a decrease of 10,700 tons; merchant, 13,820, an increase of 40 tons, as compared with a gain of 1,850 and a loss of 160 tons respectively during the week ending May 27.

STEEL MILLS BOOKED UP FOR TWO MONTHS OR MORE AT PRESENT RATE

Some Operations Running at Limit of the Labor Supply; Prices Firm
All Along the Line.

Special to The Weekly Courier.
NEW YORK, June 7.—The American Steel Market and Daily Iron & Steel Report will review the steel and iron trade tomorrow as follows: Steel mills are booked up rather solidly for various periods, generally from two to three months, at their present operating rates. The majority of mills have sufficient orders to justify their running at higher rates than at present, if they could secure the necessary fuel without undue drain on their coal reserves. Since after two months of the coal strike there are no definite prospects of an early ending the industry is husband-ing its resources so as to make certain that it can continue operating at the present rate, which in some instances is about 38,000,000 tons a year.

In the first two months of the coal strike steel production was about 23 per cent greater than in the last two months before the strike started, yet it is claimed in some quarters that steel consumers have accumulated little if any stock thus far.
At an increasing number of points employment is up to the limit of labor supply and the probability is that there were an unlimited supply of fuel the iron and steel industry would be unable to operate at its physical capacity, on account of labor supply.
Likewise it is improbable that consumers could work up much more steel than at present.

Steel prices are very firm all along the line. Most of the advances made by various mills over minimum prices in the past few weeks were only made after a very comfortable backlog of business was taken, but even at that the advanced prices are being paid in not a few instances, to secure deliveries. At minimum prices only late deliveries are available, and then only on the most attractive class of orders.

Last Friday the United States Steel Corporation reaffirmed its plan price of $4.75 for delivery over second half to manufacturing consumers and its sheet prices, based on 3.15c for common black, for July only. Having sold full tonnages on the 3.25c basis for delivery after July 1 independents are asking higher prices.

There are no important developments with respect to the coal strike.
The coal market shows an advancing tendency.

THE ROVER

By George Randolph Chester

A FLURRY IN PILLS

"I'll write it for you," offered Ames and did so.

As he passed over the paper, he again produced the sheet of bills. Phelps made a rough estimate. He saw a one-thousand-dollar bill, and at least ten five-hundred, to say nothing of some small change, like hundreds and fifties. That was an extremely comfortable sight, and he read the options.

"Where's the dollar?" he wanted to know, as he reached for his pen.

Chapter VI.

"Give me a dollar," demanded Ames.

Doctor Dill reached hesitantly in his pocket. He had perfect confidence in Ames, but he was an inquisitive-minded man.

"What's it for?" he puzzled.

"The foreign travel fund," smiled Ames.

"Mother!" Dill, watching his face with the keen insight of mediocrity, fumbled nervously in her work basket.

"If you haven't the change, I have, papa," she butteringly stated.

"Invest a dollar of mine," begged Janet Stanbury, laughing, but studying him curiously. "I'm going to Europe, too."

Ames glanced at her disappointedly. The mocking light was not in her eyes.

The doctor produced a much worn silver dollar, and Ames noticed that his look lingered on it when it was passed over.

"Now read me your riddle," the professor laughed.

"I warn you it's a long shot," Ames confessed, "but here's the dollar's worth. I bought for you the name 'Kleno' has been advertised all over the country. The doctor will put up some of his pills under that name, and I'll present them to some big drug jobbers. If they undertake the manufacture and sale of the pills, under the doctor's formula, it won't be very long until you can buy your summer tickets."

"To Kleno!" choked Janet. "Isn't that the cleverest thought!" and now that she understood that card came more to the corners of her lips.

"But what's it all about?" quavered the perplexed "Mother" Dill.

"It's the first step in your attempt to sell enough pills to go to Europe," Ames smiled at her. "The name 'Kleno' has been advertised all over the country. The doctor will put up some of his pills under that name, and I'll present them to some big drug jobbers. If they undertake the manufacture and sale of the pills, under the doctor's formula, it won't be very long until you can buy your summer tickets."

"Oh, do you suppose they will?" trembled "Mother" Dill.

"Kleno!" exclaimed the doctor, and, all at once, broke into hearty laughter.

"The good old-fashioned stuff," added Ames.

"How very clever," breathed Janet, and at last John Ames understood her. He had thought her intelligent; but she was only intellectual.

Chapter VII.

"Kleno!" exclaimed Clarence Becker, of the immense drug jobbing house of Becker, Troy & Pencil. "I've been waiting for Kleno. You're rather behind your advertising, though. Some of our biggest customers have been asking what it is."

"It's a pill," exclaimed Ames, producing one of the boxes, and displaying the awe-inspiring globule—it contained.

Clarence Becker, who was skeptical when he stood up, and could slip his collar on over his head, took but one glance at the pill, and did not ask what it was made of.

"We'll handle it with pleasure," he announced. "That was a good line of advertising. The good old-fashioned stuff!" and he shook his periphery with a laugh of appreciation. "Make the price right, and I'll give you an order for a thousand gross."

Ames shook his head.

"I prefer a proposition for you to take over the manufacture, sale and advertising from this point on."

"I see," he guessed, "broke before you get on the market."

"There hasn't been a penny's worth of Kleno sold, and a hundred and fifty thousand dollars has been spent in advertising. I won't say that Doctor Dill is broke; but he does not feel equal to pushing the sale of this pill as it should be pushed."

Clarence Becker, in whose face there were few features by which to judge of his thoughts, showed back the box of pills.

"Sorry," he announced; "but, while we'd handle your pill with pleasure if you'd keep up the advertising, we couldn't go into the game ourselves. We have three customers of our own, and it would be foolish to pay for more competition."

Ames, though with sinking enthusiasm, studied the matter quietly.

"I think you are making a mistake," he urged. "The cathartics you have are all of one type, and there's no new appeal in them. The very size and color of this pill would inspire confidence."

"Maybe so," granted Clarence, indifferently; but I've told you, where we stand, unless you can finance the thing."

"I'll place it elsewhere," decided Ames, rising. "The name alone, familiar as it is to the public, makes it worth a serious marketing campaign."

"The name's a punch," readily admitted the leading drug jobber. "I wish we owned it."

Ames, who never let any commercial hint escape him, breathed a sigh of relief.

"What will you give us for the name?" he immediately asked.

Again Mr. Becker's expression underwent a change. It grew tighter towards the apex, as he reflected that the Kleno firm was probably flat broke.

"Of course we couldn't begin to pay you what you've actually lost in advertising," he indifferently stated; "but I'll give you a chance to save a little out of the wreck, and he drew the pills towards him again and looked into the box. "How much will you take?"

Ames studied his man in perplexity, and felt that he was unfairly handicapped. He had never before tried to read a man who offered so little in the way of facial guidance.

"Fifty thousand dollars," he bluffed.

Mr. Becker's countenance widened towards the base.

"Give me twenty-five thousand," he offered; "not a cent more."

"Cash, I suppose?" observed the agent, as if in sarcasm.

"Right on the nail!" returned Clarence promptly, betraying his first hint of eagerness.

Ames made no secret of his pleasure.

"Write me the check, less five thousand!" he exclaimed. "Here are the papers and my credentials."

Mr. Becker examined those papers with interest and a smile. At last, his face had expressive features.

"Option, eh?" he chuckled. "That's where the five thousand goes. Why, Kleno was originally to have been a cleaning compound! You know, I don't think it was a good name for a pill!"

"That's what worried me," acknowledged Ames. "I hope you have a better use for it?"

"Tooth wash," explained Becker, reaching for his checkbook. "I've been hunting for a name for a month, but I never expected a soap like this. Kleno," the good, old-fashioned stuff."

"Yes, you bought a bargain," agreed Ames, thoughtfully. "I still believe, however, you would have found the pill a good proposition. It has been tried for twenty years. It was formerly known as Dill's Bilious Pills."

Clarence Becker jerked the box towards him.

"Dill's Bilious Pills?" he repeated. "Now, that's what I call a name for a pill; especially a pill that looks like this! We might negotiate with Doctor Dill for his name and formula. We can unload it on our druggists without advertising."

John Ames, agent, waited until he had signed all papers and had received a check.

"Speaking as Doctor Dill's representative, I may say that neither the formula nor the name is for sale," he firmly announced. "The doctor will manufacture them for you, himself, but cannot begin until his return from Europe, next spring."

Chapter VIII.

Ames declined to be cruel, but he had a test to make.

"Sorry, companions," he reported; "but they won't have the Kleno pill at any price."

Doctor Dill laughed, with no trace of disappointment.

"Mother!" Dill's waxen fingers locked themselves together, and then she smiled very sweetly.

"Oh, I'm so sorry!" murmured Janet Stanbury, with softened gray eyes. "I don't care, Mr. Ames, it was a clever idea, anyhow; a brilliant idea!"

Ames felt a trifle ashamed of himself.

"I didn't come back empty-handed, however," he went on, and passed over the check. "I sold the Kleno name for a tooth wash."

"Twenty thousand dollars!" gasped the doctor, clutching at the chin which missed a beard.

"Mercy!" flattered "Mother" Dill, and, adjusting her glasses carefully as she went, she hurried over to the bird's-eye view of Pompeii.

The doctor, having focused his eyes on the check for a long minute, slowly passed it back.

"This don't belong to me," he decided.

"Why not?" disputed Ames. "You paid for the option, and besides, the check is a direct outgrowth of your pill. I am sure I won't have the check."

The doctor, who was a just man, pondered slowly.

"I'll divide it equally with you," he offered. "That is positively the only basis on which I'll do business."

"What a triumph of cleverness!" he exclaimed, and there was no mockery about her. However, Ames reflected, her sense of humor was liable to assert itself at any time. Suddenly he realized that she mocked only that which she understood. The thing which had fascinated him had been but an imitation. He sighed; for her pose was perfect and her lashes were long.

The doctor shook him by the hand, and "Mother" Dill, half smiling and half crying, drew him down, by the lapels of his coat, and kissed him.

"You've made the world so real!" she told him. "How soon can you go to Europe, Janie?"

"As soon as you can get ready."

"Better go along, John," urged the doctor, heartily.

John felt the eyes of Janet fixed on him, and that there was wisdom in them.

"Sorry," he regretted; "but it is impossible."

At the Theatres

THE SOISSON.

"HER MAD BARGAIN."—The leading picture today and tomorrow, is a first National production with Anita Stewart in the principal role. The film deals in realistic manner with the life of a pampered society girl who suddenly finds herself cut off from all the wealth and luxuries she has been accustomed to. Faced by this situation, utterly unable to make her own way in life, she enters into a mad bargain that will insure her the extravagant things of life she has been used to having. The story combines intense realism with pathos, humor and swift action. Anita Stewart is beautifully charming in the leading role of Alice Lambert. One unusual scene is shown in an automobile accident where the star runs over a small boy. Only a blood transfusion can save the lad's life and Alice Lambert, humble and penitent as the result of her carelessness, offers herself. The part of the young boy is played by Ernest Huttenlocher who will be remembered by thousands of film followers for his juvenile roles in "What Your Hurry" and "The Love Special." Monday and Tuesday, "The Song of Life" will be shown.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"SILVER SPURS."—Is a Western picture with Lester Cuneo in the leading role. "Silver Spurs" affords Cuneo excellent opportunities for acting as well as a display of thrilling stunts and hard riding. There is one thing to be said in favor of the Lester Cuneo pictures and that is that they move to a swift climax. Zala Zolana and Bert Spottis have the two principal acting parts in conjunction with Cuneo and are as fiery a pair of villains as ever darkened a silver sheet. Miss Zolana plays the part of Carmelita and Spottis is seen as Juan von Rolfe. Especial mention should be made, too, of Evelyn Solbie who gives quite a remarkable characterization as an Indian woman. Phil Gastrock enacts the role of a monk in a convincing manner. Others in the cast are William Ward, Doris Arnold, Tom Bates, Mark Hadley and Clark Comstock. The story is woven around a once proud family of Castilian blood whose California estate has been wrongfully seized by Von Rolfe. The picture will also be shown tomorrow.

THE ORPHEUM.

"ONE A MINUTE."—A Paramount picture, with Douglas MacLean in the leading role, is the feature picture today and tomorrow. The familiar slogan, "It pays to advertise," has never been more humorously or conclusively demonstrated on the screen than in "One a Minute." The public's susceptibility to an active publicity campaign is humorously proven when a Jimmy Knick, the leading role assumed by Mr. MacLean, a young lawyer, temporarily turned druggist, accumulates a fortune by means of a spurious patent medicine and an enormous advertising drive. However, he alone knows the mysterious ingredient which he has added to the drug and which he claims is the basis of its success. The inability of government inspectors to analyze Jimmy's miraculous preparation, and the desire of rival concerns to buy his patents result in his arrest and an exciting and humorous conclusion to the story. "One a Minute" was adapted to the screen from the stage farce of the same name by Fred Jackson. Marian DeBuck plays opposite the star.

Nurse Saves 2 People

From Operation

"I had two patients that the doctors seemed unable to reach with their medicines, and in both cases advised the knife. A friend who had tried Mayr's Wonderful Remedy for stomach trouble proposed that I recommend it to my patients, which I did. Both are now entirely well. I am very glad that I was able to recommend it." It removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract, and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince of money refunded at A. A. Clarke's and druggists everywhere.—Advertisement

The Face in the Mirror.

Your face, does it wear the contented expression of good health, or are the features drawn and pallid? In the latter case, your story is read by all who see you, and what woman of spirit wants to be palled for her physical condition? There is a way to get the nervous, tired lines out of your body. The use of that standard remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, will strengthen the nerves and tone up the system to resist that excessive fatigue.—Advertisement

Silk and Wool Travel Frocks—Chance to Save!

Five groups at five prices—$17.77, $22.77, $27.77, $37.77 and one group at Half Price.

And their main charm is the fact that they're going to be absolutely necessary if you intend going away on a vacation.

Because nothing stands up better under the wear and tear of travel than a smartly designed frock in a crepe or twill fabric. All are materially reduced.
